Investment performance

The compound average effective rate of net investment returns (also known as net fund earnings), ending 30 June 2015. Your account is invested in the following options:

	6 months	1 year	5 years p.a.	10 years p.a.
Balanced ¹	5.40%	11.00%	10.28%	7.14%

Please note that the investment returns shown above are provided for comparison purposes only. Weekly net investment returns rates are used for calculating the actual earnings on your investment.

A full list of weekly net investment returns (also known as net fund earnings) for our investment options is available at hostplus.com.au

The long-term investment returns are not necessarily reflective of your actual return over the same period. This could be due to you moving into or out of the investment option at a time during the periods, or due to the splitting of your superannuation across more than one investment option.

Past investment performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance.

¹ From 1 July 2013, the Balanced option, our default option became our MySuper product. The product dashboard for our MySuper option can be found at hostplus.com.au/dashboard

Additional explanation of fees and costs

Administration fees

The administration fee (also known as the 'member fee') is a fee that relates to the administration of your account and the broader operations of the fund. Our administration fee is $1.50 per week, charged to your account weekly (after tax) and deducted monthly in arrears or when you exit the fund.

Activity fees

Activity fees represent the fees that have been deducted out of your account over the statement period for the activities that Hostplus has engaged in at your request, with your consent or that relate to you and that are required by law. These fees include contribution splitting fees, dishonoured payment fees, family law splitting fees and financial planning fees. Activity fees are shown in your statement under the 'Minus deductions' section in your account statement (if applicable).

ChoicePlus (if applicable)

- Fees - The Choiceplus portfolio administration fee is charged at a rate of $15.00 per month and includes access to the Standard Thomson Reuters data subscription. This fee is deducted monthly.
- Tax - Net investment returns on your Choiceplus account are after-tax, which includes tax on earned and accrued investment income such as interest, dividends and trust distributions. It also includes capital gains tax on any investments realised throughout the period, as well as an allowance for tax on unrealised capital gains or losses at statement date.
- Brokerage - A fee charged by a broker for the execution of buying or selling listed securities and exchange traded funds (ETFs). The brokerage fee payable depends on the transaction value.

Insurance premiums

Insurance premiums (fees), where applicable, are charged weekly and deducted monthly. This amount represents the total premiums deducted from your account over the statement period.

Indirect investment costs

These are the investment management costs that reduce the return on your investment. It includes performance fees, brokerage, stamp duty, asset consulting expenses, bank fees and custodian costs incurred in managing each investment option as a percentage of the total average net assets of the relevant investment option. The indirect investment costs incurred will be based on the member's chosen investment option.

Superannuation tax

All fees and costs are inclusive of GST, less any input tax credits and stamp duty (if applicable). Hostplus passes on any tax deduction on investment costs in the form of higher returns on your investments; that is a tax deduction is not passed on by way of reduced fees or costs.

For full details of the fees and costs please refer to our member guide at hostplus.com.au/memberguide/fees

Co-contribution

This is the Government co-contribution payment. If you are a low – middle income earner and make voluntary contributions to your super from your after tax salary, the Government will also contribute to your super. The maximum entitlement is $500 depending on your income, how much you contribute and certain conditions being met.

For more information on the Government co-contribution refer to the ATO website at www.ato.gov.au

Low Income Superannuation Contribution (LISC)

The low income super contribution is a Government superannuation payment of up to $500 per year. If you earn $37,000 or less a year, you may be eligible to receive a LISC payment directly into your super fund subject to certain conditions being met.

Net cash flows

The net cash flows include two components:

- money that is deposited into your account over the statement period, such as contributions made by:
 - you (e.g. rollovers, transfers or personal contributions)
 - your employer on your behalf (e.g. Superannuation Guarantee, award or salary sacrifice contribution)
 - the government (e.g. government co-contributions)
- money that is rolled/transferred out of your account or cashed out of your account such as:
 - transfers to other funds (including payment to an Eligible Rollover Fund)
 - benefit payments
- money that is adjusted to your account as a credit.

Any amounts deposited into your account or rolled/transferred out or cashed out of your account after 30 June 2015 will appear on your next statement.

Net investment returns (also known as net fund earnings)

Net fund earnings represent the net investment return on each underlying investment manager(s) from your selected investment option, less any applicable fees and taxes. If you've changed investment options during this period, net investment returns will be calculated using the net investment returns that apply for each option you have chosen. The amount will depend on how long your super has been invested in each of those options during the statement period.

Net fund earnings can be positive or negative.

Nominated beneficiaries

In the event of your death, your dependants or your personal legal representative will receive your benefit. Hostplus will determine who will receive your benefit based on the type of nomination you have made:

- Valid binding death nomination – this nomination binds (instructs) the trustee to pay your death benefit to the person(s) nominated as your beneficiaries. Binding death nominations expire every three years.
- Non-binding death nomination – this nomination tells the trustee who you would like to receive your benefit. The trustee is not bound by your nomination but will take it into account when determining who receives your benefit.
- If you don't nominate a beneficiary the balance of your account will be paid to your estate or your dependants or a combination, as determined by the Trustee.

It is important to remember that only dependants and/or your legal personal representative can be nominated to receive your death benefit.

Preserved benefit

Government legislation requires certain superannuation benefits to be kept in a super fund until you have satisfied a condition of release such as having reach your preservation age and retired.

Restricted non-preserved benefit

Restricted non-preserved benefits represent the sum of the following, accrued by you prior to 1 July 1999:

- Restricted non-preserved amounts held in your account at 30 June 1999; and any
- Restricted non-preserved benefits rolled over or transferred from another superannuation fund on or after 1 July 1999.

These amounts cannot be increased by contributions made to the fund or by investment earnings in respect of the period on or after 1 July 1999.

Preserved and restricted non-preserved benefits can only be accessed if a condition of release is satisfied.

Unrestricted non-preserved benefit

This amount represents the 'non-preserved' portion of any benefit that you might have rolled into the fund from another regulated fund or the 'non-preserved' portion of any benefit that you are entitled to receive but have chosen to leave in the fund. Unrestricted non preserved benefits held in the fund may be accessed at any time without needing to satisfy a condition of release.

Tax

As determined by the Federal Government, superannuation taxes are deducted from your account and paid directly to the Australian Taxation Office. These may include contribution tax (on employer and self-employed contributions or that which applies to high income earners, earning in excess of $300,000), and tax payable on superannuation lump sum payments (also referred to as a commutation).

The Trustee also offers anti-detriment payments to its members. The purpose of these payments is to refund the tax paid on concessional contributions when a member dies. For more information on anti-detriment payments please refer to the Product Disclosure Statement available at hostplus.com.au

This section may also include:

- an additional tax of 30% (plus Medicare levy and the temporary 2% Budget Repair levy) which is imposed by the Government for not providing your tax file number. This means you may be required to pay up to 49% instead of 15% on employer contributions;
